Storstac Offers Portable Storage Solutions to the Construction Industry

Storstac keeps construction companies happy with the sale and rental of secure and durable portable storage containers.

Etobicoke, Ontario April 20, 2005 -- Need more storage space on the job site? Storstac carries a number of tough, weatherproof, and secure portable storage containers to suit your temporary or permanent storage needs.

There are many benefits to using portable storage containers, particularly in the construction industry. For one, they are completely portable, meaning they can be delivered to the job site quickly and placed in a convenient location that is handy to the work being done. Also, once work is completed in one location, the storage container and all its contents can be easily relocated to a different job site where it is needed.

The construction of a standard shipping container lends itself to be an extremely strong, cost-effective structure that is water-tight and vandal-proof. "Using portable storage containers from Storstac is the ideal way to ensure that at the end of the day your tools and special equipment will be secure and kept in good shape," said Vincent Ruggiero, Storstac President.
